“ Many years ago, when my son Will was about 3 or 4 years old, we were visiting my Mom and stepdad (Dennis's oldest brother Jerry) in Chula Vista. Will had a toy baseball bat and wiffle ball and wanted someone to play baseball. Of course, Dennis stepped right up to pitch the ball to him. Jerry warned Dennis that Will could really hit the ball. Dennis looked at Jerry with a "Yeah, right...". He pitched the ball and Will hit a line drive that smacked Dennis HARD right in between the eyes. I was horrified! Dennis was obviously stunned that that hit had come from such a little guy. But he immediately burst out laughing and complimented my little boy on what a great baseball player he was. And he picked up the ball and continued to play with him and absolutely made Will's day. Dennis had a great heart.

“ Dennis was a kindred spirit. From a backyard full of automotive projects, to a guy always willing to share his knowledge, to his entrepreneurial business dealings, to an always welcoming, big smile kind of guy... oh, well, maybe that last one wasn't something we shared, but something I admired! I appreciated sharing time with him whenever it happened.

The one thing I was always sure of, was the loving bond between him and Jerry.

I think I knew him more from hearing Jerry tell stories about him and his Dad while growing up, as well as his latest adventures in this process called life. They were always both interesting and entertaining.

I believe that Dennis was a true example of a life well lived, on his own terms, and always as a gift to the people who surrounded him.

May he rest in peace.

“ My best memories of Dennis are the many projects he always had going on. He was a hard and skilled worker. In his earlier years, after retiring from the San Diego Police Force, he bought houses at auctions then renovated them. He did all the work himself and then sold them at a profit. Dennis always had a way of making a buck! Later he got into the back flow prevention business, checking and installing them. Especially in later years, he and Jerry were very close and spoke often on the telephone. I would hear them laughing about their childhood memories, discussing politics, and talking about sports. Dennis loved his Padres! The day before Dennis died, he and Jerry were discussing Jerry's upcoming visit to San Diego in June. They were planning to attend a Padres game, go out to eat, and do "brother" things. They were both looking forward so much to the visit. Sadly, he left this world before the visit could occur. May he rest in peace!
